The Parent Club Meeting

by Carol Callahan

The annual meeting of the ESSFTA on February 23, 23 and 24th in Las Vegas, NV was well represented by WVESSA members. In addition to Don and I, club members attending included Larry Schwartz, Marti Nickoli, Marie Andersen, Bobbie Daniel.

All of us in attendance were kept busy attending various meetings. We did, however, find a 'few minutes' to enjoy some of the many places that Las Vegas has to offer. At least a few of us contributed to the growing economy of LV!

Some of the highlights of the committee meetings include:

- The Judge's Education Committee is in the process of completing their Powerpoint presentation to enhance the current program already in place.
- We have re-established a Rescue Committee. This will be good news to the growing number of people who are involved with Springer rescue.
- The Breeders Referral Program (BARF) has established a one year waiting period for new members who wish to be added to the breeders referral list.

The field side has established new guidelines for becoming judges for field events.

There was much more and those of you who are Parent Club members will be receiving the minutes of the meeting in the near future and can read all about it.

If you are not a member of the Parent Club, and would like to be, please contact me for an application. This is your opportunity to take part in your breed club.

The Puppy Protection Act

from AKC

UPDATE: March 8, 2002

The list of Farm Bill conference committee members in this article have been confirmed, and work has begun to reconcile the House and Senate versions of the bill. It is critical that dog fanciers keep up the campaign to have the Puppy Protection Act removed from the Farm Bill. Please refer to the alert below for further details, model letters and talking points for use in contacting your Senators and Representatives. Every phone call and fax counts!

February 21, 2002

On February 13, 2002 the Senate voted to include the Puppy Protection Act in the Senate farm bill. Although Senator Rick Santorum (R-PA), the lead sponsor of the PPA, made several minor last minute alterations in the bill, it is still unacceptable to purebred dog fanciers. Senator Santorum continues to tell fanciers and his colleagues that the PPA targets only "puppy mills" and will not affect hobby and show breeders. However, Senator Santorum rejected AKC's efforts to include language in the PPA, and even in Senate floor discussion, that would limit the PPA only to the commercial breeders currently regulated under the Animal Welfare Act.

The farm bill now heads to a "conference committee" of Senators and Representatives who will attempt to reconcile differences in the Senate and House versions and produce a "clean bill" that the two chambers can agree on and send to the President. The conferees have their work cut out for them. The Senate farm bill, which is not yet printed, is expected to run to nearly 1400 pages because of all the non-farm-program content like the PPA inserted by various senators. The House bill is "only" about 350 pages.

There is no PPA provision in the House farm bill. Therefore the conferees have broad latitude to drop the PPA from the farm bill completely, adopt the Senate version of the PPA, or come up with a different provision. The AKC is urging conferees to eliminate the PPA from the farm bill.

Although the conferees for the farm bill have not yet been named, a list of likely conferees appears at the end of this alert. This list will be updated if necessary. All fanciers are urged to communicate with your Senators and Representative and ask them to eliminate the PPA from the farm bill. Two model letters are included at the end of this alert, one for persons who are constituents of conferees and one for those who are not constituents of conferees. Even if your senators or representative are not conferees, you can still help by sending the model letter below, or a letter you make up yourself, asking your member to talk to the conferees and urge them to drop the PPA from the farm bill. This kind of member-to-member lobbying can be very effective. For fanciers who are constituents of conferees, your letters directly to the conferees are obviously very important.

Congress is under great pressure to conference the farm bill quickly because the agricultural planting season is rapidly approaching. Therefore, contacts with conferees must be made immediately. Please remember that the number of communications is important. Don't rely only on your club secretary or Legislative Liaison to make a contact. Every fancier should make a contact.

U.S. mail to the Washington D.C. offices of Senators and Representatives is still very slow because of the anthrax scare. However, written communications are still the most effective.

Therefore, we suggest faxing your letter to your members at the Washington office fax numbers shown below. We have provided local office telephone numbers and e-mail addresses for those who do not want to write a letter. Phone calls and e-mails are helpful, but letters are most effective. Don't hesitate to do all three.

Following are the AKC's objections to the PPA provisions in the Senate farm bill:

- The PPA requires the federal government to set standards for when to breed and how frequently to breed dogs. The decision on whether and when to breed should be made by owners, not the federal government. Currently the Animal Welfare Act does not regulate breeding practices for any species regulated under the Act. We believe it is a dangerous precedent and unnecessary for the federal government to begin attempting to control the breeding of domestic animals.
- The PPA requires the federal government to establish and enforce "socialization" standards for puppies and dogs. There is no basis in current science, and no consensus among breeders, veterinarians or animal behaviorists, as to what constitutes acceptable "socialization standards". Breeders follow a myriad of different practices for socializing dogs and puppies depending on the circumstances in which the animals are kept, the purposes for which they are bred, and differences in breeds and in individual dogs. Forcing the federal government to develop and enforce a socialization standard would mire the government in endless controversy, and would become an enforcement nightmare.

- The PPA imposes a three-strikes-and-you're-out standard on violators of the Animal Welfare Act. This provision does not give the USDA any authority it does not already have; it only reduces the discretion of the Department in dealing with violators. It will mire the Department down in bureaucratic requirements and litigation because it will create an incentive for dealers to challenge every violation rather than providing an incentive to come into compliance. It does not address the real enforcement problem, which is persons operating without a license or with a suspended or revoked license.

Although the proponents of the PPA say that it is intended to apply only to the approximately 3000 dog dealers licensed under current USDA regulations, the same groups are supporting litigation that would bring all persons who buy or sell dogs for hunting, breeding or security purposes, or for use as a pet, under licensing except actual retail pet stores. This would require USDA to go into hundreds of thousands of individual homes to inspect and regulate the conditions under which hobby and show breeders and ordinary pet owners maintain their pets, including how and when they breed and how they socialize their dogs and puppies.
